JUDGE CAN FIND NO PLACE BUT THE BRIDEWELL FOR SICK WOMAN

Case In Court of Domestic Relations Brings Out Appalling Fact—Doctor Says Young Girls Forced To Go to Bridewell to Learn Evil From Older and Experienced Women Who Are There—Baby and Mother Finally Taken In.

The appalling fact that there is no place among Chicago's many hospitals and much vaunted charities where a woman of the streets, whose condition makes her a menace, may be treated, unless she is sent to the Bridewell and a record placed against her, was disclosed in the Court of Domestic Relations.

Nannie Ambler, 22, a colored girl, was arrested while soliciting in the street and brought into court on a charge of contributing to the dependency of her twenty-day-old baby.

The girl, examined by the municipal physician, Dr. Anna Dwyer, was found to possess the mentality of a child of ten.

She claimed she was unable to get work and that she wasn't strong enough to do housework or washing.

She had an illegitimate child a year ago, which since died.

She has been following the profession of a prostitute until she went to the County Hospital to have her last baby.

When the child was thirteen days
